

PENSION CAPITAL STRATEGIES

London, 7 November 2006 - Pension Capital Strategies Ltd ("PCS"), a leading company pensions risk management and recovery adviser today announced that it has been successful in its application to the Financial Services Authority for the authorisation to carry out pensions and corporate strategy advisory services. The authorisation that came into effect on 1 November 2006 will enable PCS to offer its clients a broad range of advice on managing corporate pension schemes, including pension investment strategies.

PCS was established in 2006 to offer a new approach to managing corporate pension obligations, offering advice on managing scheme assets and liabilities, on communication with trustees and on finding the right funding solutions. PCS is led by Peter Redhead and Charles Cowling, both of whom have extensive experience in the pensions risk management and recovery space. PCS is a subsidiary of the Jardine Lloyd Thomson Group.

Charles Cowling, Managing Director of PCS said:

"We are delighted to announce that PCS is now authorised by the Financial Services Authority. While a relatively small proportion of advice will fall under the regulated banner, the authorisation serves to demonstrate the seriousness with which PCS takes the principle of best practice and treating our clients fairly. This will provide greater certainty to our clients and enable us to offer an even broader range of pension services and advice."
